investors in Italy, Europe and the United Kingdom belonging to different classes of the financial community.

Commenting on the event, Bianca Fersini-Mastelloni, Polytems CEO, said “We are pleased to have organized the 3rd Annual Polytems Investor Day in Vienna, an international conference in one of the oldest financial centre in continental Europe and be back here in Vienna with Italian companies to meet investors in person. With this third edition, the conference is becoming a recurring opportunity for Italian companies to interact with the Austrian investors, and we are delighted to verify that we have seen some good interest from Austrian investors who are interested in Italian companies. Our Company goal is always to help the Italian firms to get a constant attention from investors, in Italy and abroad. We push our customers to see around the corner pushing boundaries of the financial markets, meeting with international investors in order to increase their shareholder base and their visibility. With a view to the most effective investor relations, Polytems organises only small conferences to facilitate dialogue between investors and companies by selecting the investor classes more and more carefully in order to offer companies participating in the conference high quality and value meetings. This year 4 companies attended the conference and we have registered 16 investors and organized 40 meetings with an average of 10 meetings per company”.
